

Axiom Support Solutions

A Flexible, Customer-Centric Approach

We routinely ask our clients what they like LEAST about their previous technology providers.

The most common response is that they were promised one thing and delivered something else. Whether it's poor quality support, deceptive pricing, or complex & long-term contracts; clients feel misled & frustrated.

At Axiom, we conduct ourselves differently.

Our support model is entirely transparent and focused on your specific needs and requirements.

You choose what type of support is right for you, how fast a response time you require, then choose from a variety of flexible payment options. That's it!

“So, what does this customer-centric support model entail?”

1

We define what type of service each client needs to support their business (full service or on-demand).

2

We work with clients to define service-level needs. This includes what response time and hours of service the client requires.

3

We custom build a support plan that's just right for each client.
